

Plan to Observe Catholic Book Week Nov. 16

National Catholic Book Week will be observed on the campus next week, from Monday, November 16 through Saturday, November 21. The exhibit will be held in the College Library.

Theme of the library display this year will be the Golden Thread of Catholic World Classics. To the Rev. Raphael Gross,

C.P.P.S., professor of English, goes credit for the novel idea. Father Gross will work with the Rev. Clarence J. Schuerman, C.P.P.S., librarian, and his staff. Idea of the exhibit is to show the thread of Catholic Classics. Works of such immortals as St. Augustine, Tasso, Cervantes, Newman, Bede, Thompson, and Chaucer will form the foundation for the display.

Subsidiary exhibits will consist of one display devoted to modern Catholic Drama. A feature of this exhibit will be a number of autographed portraits of famous Catholic motion picture stars.

There will also be an exhibit of the work of Priest and Sister poets. Many of the first editions and autographed volumes in this exhibit will be furnished by the Rev. Paul F. Speckbaugh, C.P.P.S., chairman of the department of English.

Members of the Catholic Poetry Society will cooperate with Father Gross and the library staff in providing representative displays in the field of Catholic Poetry.

Tentative plans have been formulated to display a number of Catholic books written about the war, or about problems arising out of the present world conflict. There will also be a special display of the latest Catholic books in all fields of literary endeavor.

"We won't consider the exhibit a success unless each student reads at least one Catholic Book during the coming week," said Father Gross in commenting on the purpose of the observance.

Community Students' Offensive Makes Short Shrift of Leaves

Poetry Society Elects Officers, Plans Picnic

Sunday, November 8, marked the opening of the College Poetry Society for the present school year. The following were elected to office: G. Richard Schreiber, president; James Channell, vice-president; John Goetz, secretary; Raymond Galvin, treasurer.

Plans were discussed to increase the club's popularity and activity on the campus. A step was also taken toward adding to the collection of autographed manuscripts of contemporary Catholic poets. The Poetry Society will meet on the second and fourth Sundays of each month.

Commerce Club Calls Off Picnic Outing

The Commerce Club has postponed indefinitely its picnic scheduled for last Saturday afternoon. The picnic was called off because of the large number of students going home or attending the various games over the weekend.

Leaves, leaves everywhere. The trees in their regular autumnal shedding have covered the campus with a great brown foliage, and as in previous years, the Community Students, under the direction of the Rev. Joseph J. Hiller, C.P.P.S., have begun the job of clearing the campus of its leafy burden.

Besides this task, the Community Students have also undertaken to transplant some Cannas into the grove for the winter. The boys are being lent a willing hand this year by the Rev. Cletus Dirksen, C.P.P.S., and the Rev. Camillus P. Lutkemeier, C.P.P.S., who are using this work as a medium of exercise.

Curtain Club Members Hear Fr. Rapp Speak

Members of the Curtain Club heard the Rev. Ildephons Rapp, C.P.P.S., last Saturday evening. Father Rapp, long connected with theatrical work at St. Joseph's, reviewed the work done here in dramatics.

After the address, fourth-year Community Students presented a one-act play. John Henders, James Grothjohn, Norbert Landino, and Paul Heckler made up the cast.

Announce Cast For Three-Act Comedy By Dramatic Group

Frank A. Bush's Set That To Music will be presented by the Curtain Club sometime in the near future according to the moderator, the Rev. Robert Koch, C.P.P.S. The cast was announced when the club met last Saturday evening in the College Theatre.

The play is a typical college comedy in three acts. The story begins in Upland University where the boys are in a serious financial situation for building a fraternity house.

Practice for the play will begin immediately and will continue until the play is in tip-top shape for an early December performance.

Fr. Meinrad Koester, Ex-Prof, Dead At 64

Funeral services were held Monday morning at St. Charles Seminary, Cathagena, Ohio, for the Rev. Meinrad Koester, C.P.P.S., professor of English and History at St. Joseph's for over thirty years. Father Koester died suddenly last Thursday in St. Rose Convent, La Crosse, Wisconsin.

Born at Josephville, Mo., Feb. 10, 1878, he entered the Society at Burkettsville Sept. 8, 1893.

After his ordination in 1907, he was assigned teaching duties at St. Joseph's, where he remained until 1936.

For the past three years Father Koester had been Chaplain at St. Rose Convent, La Crosse.

Richard Carpenter Will Play Concert Here November 18

Richard Carpenter will play a piano concert Wednesday, November 18, in the College Theatre. For the lovers of good music, this will be a real treat; for Mr. Carpenter has, in addition to great technical proficiency, rare gifts of interpretation.

His playing is distinctive; it is characterized by grace and dignity. On the concert stage, his winning personality and gracious manner quickly captivate his hearers.

He has studied under such masters as Rudolph Ganz and Arthur Schnabel. At his command is a vast repertoire, which includes pieces written by practically all the great composers for the piano.

Whiting Thespians To Present Drama By Spanish Author

G. Martinez-Sierra's famous Cradle Song will live again this Saturday evening, beginning at 8:00, as the St. John C.Y.O. dramatic group of Whiting, Ind. bring it to the College Theatre for the pleasure of all Collegeville.

The play not only has enjoyed countless successes both in America and abroad, but has everywhere drawn fine tributes from its critics. The New York American printed the following review, "There is such a wistful, delicate loveliness about this Cradle Song with its world-alooof nuns, its bells, its music, its admirable convent, and its uneventful events. The little comedy soars. Here is a play that those who love the theatre should endorse and those who are up in arms against the theatre's recent trend should hasten to advertise."

Simple, Emotional Genuineness
Perhaps the wide and perennial popularity of the play can be attributed to its simplicity and emotional genuineness. Says the Rocky Mountain News, "It is a universal thing that will be brought forth years from now and be just as lovely as the melodies that mothers have sung through the centuries."

The Rev. John Lefko, C.P.P.S., moderator of the Whiting dramatic group, is directing the St. John rendition, which was successfully presented last March in the Whiting Community Center by this same group.

Robert Causland and the stage crew have constructed two settings for the play.

The Cast is as follows:
The Prioress.....Mary Cengel
The Vicar.....Irene Gregorovich
The Mistress Of Novices.....Mary Janek
Sister Joanna of the Cross.....Ann Simala

Glee Club Tests Vocal Chords For Christmas-Tide Program

Engaged in thrice-weekly rehearsals the St. Joseph's College Glee Club, under the direction of the Rev. Robert Koch, C.P.P.S., has been working diligently in recent weeks to prepare a program to be given shortly before the beginning of the Christmas vacation.

The concert, which will be given in the College Theatre, is to consist of songs on a combined patriotic and Christmas theme. Among other popular selections, the Glee Club of thirty voices will give its rendition of "Army Air Corps," "America Calling," "Angels of Mercy," and possibly "White Christmas."

Observe Armistice Day With Work, Work, Work

In accordance with the accelerated program whereby a college course can be completed in three calendar years, the theme for this Armistice day was work and more work.

Since all war industries kept up their production this day, it was decided that the patriotic thing to do was to keep studying.

On Armistice Day

There was a cold, ominous note about this Armistice Day. The ghosts of old days and past mistakes stalked the hours. The spangled parades and joyful commemoration of past years stood by for a grim and solemn sort of observance. For America, this Armistice Day, was again at war—fighting with the spirit of her youth and all the great wonders of her industry.

But America mourned her dead, and whispered prayers for them, with dry eyes and determined chins. America had passed that point of sorrow where tears alone will suffice. This Armistice Day she had come to that period in history where to shed tears seemed most inadequate. This Armistice Day she came to know that what the world needs is not great armies, or mighty guns, or broken battlefields. She came to know that victories are not won with great armies, or mighty guns, or on broken battlefields. She came to know that they are won in deeper places: In the hearts of men, and in their spirits. For there are all men alike.

And as the day waned and slipped away to its place in memory and history, there were firm resolutions, and fond hopes that these dead shall not have died in vain; that someday the world must come to know how to live in Peace, one part with another. For that hope lips moved in silent prayer and hearts yearned in the twilight.

At Least One Book

Next week is National Catholic Book Week. In Collegeville, as in other towns, cities, and hamlets the country over, the library will offer a special display centered around the theme of Catholic Literature. Modern literature is in sore straits. Its largest hope for recovery lies in the possibility of awakened interest on the part of the average, potential reader. Make an effort to read at least one of the Catholic books on display next week. Make an effort to read it before the exhibit closes. You will find it time well spent, and enjoyable, too.

Sanguinist Devotions

Attendance at the Sanguinist Club's period of adoration, held every Sunday afternoon at one o'clock, continues to be most gratifying. A good percentage of the total student body has been represented at each of the devotions.

Primarily intended for the benefit of the Alumni of St. Joseph's College who are in service, the short devotion can also be utilized to great personal advantage. It lasts about five to ten minutes. A day should come when not one pew in Chapel is left unfilled Sunday afternoon. Perhaps that day will come this Sunday.

Following the Flickers

With Dick Schreiber

WHAT'S HAPPENED TO those 'pre-meer' producers of Hollywood, Sam (Include Me Out) Goldwyn, and Cecil (Radio Theatre) deMille? It has been some time since either one came out with a rip-snorting feature. Perhaps Cecil is still in hiding from his Reap the Wild Wind fiasco; but that still doesn't explain Sam's absence.

We almost thought that Sam and Cecil should have been in on Takes of Manhattan. Everyone else was.

And now for the reviews:

RITZ: Friday & Saturday

The Dead End Kids, plus Paul Kelly, Helen Parrish, and Ann Gillis are back with a story about unscrupulous finance companies. This one is called "Tough as they Come." Legion Rating Unavailable.

Following the trend of all their crime-doesn't-pay series, the Dead End Kids proceed to have great fun in the final sequence tearing down the usury racket. Their methods aren't artistic—they're just melodramatic. And the reason for that is simple: Dead End Kids aren't supposed to be artistic. It's doubtful whether you'll like this.

RITZ: Sunday, Monday, Tuesday

Back together, and screwy as ever, are Stan Laurel and his friend. The Wizzard of Ozz—Oliver Hardy. Thrown in for good measure in this thing called "A Haunting We Will Go," are Dante, the magician, and beauteous Sheila Ryan. Legion Rating Unavailable.

Laurel and Hardy, like Charlie Chaplin, are two of the few comedians who rely on pantomime rather than clever words to get their laughs. And they generally get the laughs.

PALACE: Sunday, Monday, Tuesday

"My Sister Eileen" comes down from Broadway and the legit stage where it is still grossing big box office receipts. You'll find it amusing fare. The cast includes Rosalind Russell, Brian Aherne, and Janet Blair. You will like the whole cast, particularly the newcomer, Janet Blair, who was 'discovered' by Mr. Aherne while riding horseback on a Hollywood bridle path. Legion Rating: A-2.

RITZ: Wednesday & Thursday

The Andrews Sisters are in "What's Cookin'" which purports to be a riot of fun and music. Their vocalizing is slightly on the raspy side. It's hard to say what they will be able to do with Abbott and Costello. But the feature got a good reception elsewhere. Legion Rating Unavailable.

CAMPUS CAPERS

Georgie (Porgie) Ellspermann and his roommate, Chas. (Bad Boy) Browning, live like a couple of Indians. Step into their Wigwam and see for yourself. On their wall is a bright striped blanket, the desks are packed with peace-pipes, and of course there's that flashy robe of Browning's . . . Young Rack reminds us very much of his older brother Mike. He walks, talks and acts just like him . . . (Bright Eyes) Keough actually floored us when he said, I'll take a shower every week. Can you spare the soap, bub? . . . (Old Man) Herriges' secret ambition is to become a pilot. The three-point landings he makes when he runs down the stairs so fast will give him plenty of experience . . . Red Wood with his ancient Ford should be in Ripley's Believe It or Not. That Ford has carried many students to and fro from Rensy in the last three years. He established some sort of a record as a member of Private Human Cargo Corporation . . . (Pug) Bernhard waits these days for an answer from Chicago. We would like to warn him that school is over sometime in May. That's all, Pug . . . Warning to all freshmen: Be careful of that 9:30 curfew up town. The siren blows at that time and all under 18 must be off the street. Not to be outdone by last week's mouse trappers and clubbers, young Frank Staucet thought he'd astound the St. Joe world by catching one alive. He just about had him when Tom Joyce stepped in and stomped—result, Frank is no hero and Tom has a new pair of shoes . . . Al Wasnis hates mice; upon sight of one of those little creatures he takes to his heels or to the nearest chandelier . . . Carl (Fuzzy) Caston and Jim (Stubby) Channell were trying to see who could grow the biggest mustache; the idea probably originated when these two saw Walt Corvington's misplaced eyebrow . . . Are Athletes Out For A Joy Ride?

By Vincent Giese

This week STUFF decided to come to the defense of the athletes. We wanted to do something to suppress the attitude among many that athletes are not serious minded in regard to their education. To do this STUFF went to the athletes personally, in order that they might defend themselves.

We all know that there is a general tendency to draw a line between athletes and scholars. People tend to classify students in one of those two categories.

This is indeed a false attitude.

Today, especially, there are none who realize more deeply than the athletes the necessity of physical and mental coordination for success in any field of endeavor. Might we add that it will be this coordination that will bring victory in this war.

Stan Lapsys, senior from Chicago, Ill., had this to say, "Most athletes learn on the field of athletics that life is not merely a physical encounter nor a physical game, but rather a coordination of physical and mental powers. Therefore they realize the necessary part knowledge plays in the battle of life."

Heine Kauffmann, sophomore from Louisville, Ky., says, "I believe that anyone who comes to college to participate in sports without any thought toward preparing himself for the future through studying is wasting one of the best opportunities that he will ever have."

"No matter who or what a person may be his chief aim during his college stay should be to gather unto himself all the knowledge that is possible for him to attain. Then he can do something and be somebody while on the campus and in later life." These were the words of Jack Pepper, sophomore from Lima, Ohio.

Senior Bill Smith from Louisville, Ky., made this statement. "By the fact that athletes have to maintain a certain average in their scholastic work in order to participate in inter-collegiate athletics proves that athletes must spend some of their time off the athletic field preparing their lessons, and thus for the future. This average, of course, is not the highest; yet it shows that they must divide their time between the ath-

Senior Sketches

One of St. Joseph's three senior day students is Warren Thomas Gray, who drives back and forth from Goodland every day to attend his classes. He was born January 4, 1921.

Warren went to Wadena High School near Goodland, where he won three letters in basketball; he was also elected captain of the team.

Graduating at the end of this semester in January, Warren expects to attend at least one semester at the Indiana University law school before he is called into the armed forces by the Navy; he is enrolled in the Naval Reserve V-7 program.

Warren, who is majoring in Economics, will be graduated from St. Joe with an A.B. degree in Business Administration. He intends to resume his course in law after the war.

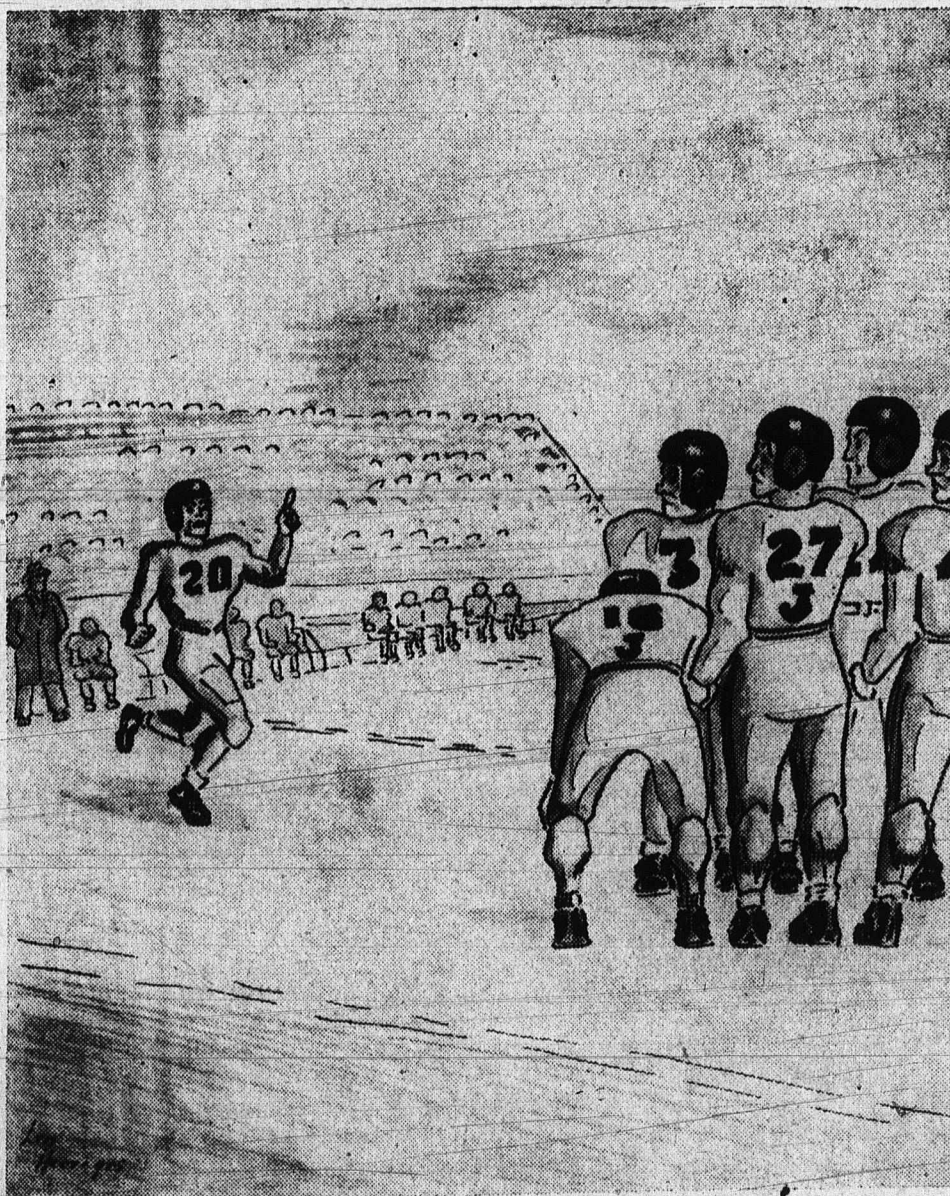

During his first two years of college, Warren lived on the campus and held membership in the Commerce Club and in the Raleigh Club. However he discontinued these memberships when he became a day student.

letic field and books."

For our final interview we went to sophomore George Ellspermann of Evansville, Ind. Here are George's words, "To a conscientious athlete, this attitude of many is false, because that type fully realizes that after his athletic career is over, he will have to make his way in the world just as any other person does, since in a business world the pay-off comes on intellectual capabilities of doing a good and conscientious type of work, and not on a name which one might make in college."

Puma Prints

By John Feicht

Now that the Green Knights of St. Norbert's have bowed before the Pumas, only Butler and Valparaiso remain on the schedule. The thing that St. Joe has to guard against is over-confidence.

The undefeated string may have reached 19, but that is no reason why defeat could not come to our team. Remember that this football season has been filled with upsets. The easiest way to be upset is to become over-confident.

Saturday's battle at Indianapolis should prove to be a good indication where St. Joe will land in the final Indiana Conference standings. Providing the Pumas go undefeated in conference competition again this season, they will probably run into the same situation as they did last year.

In the 1941 final standings Rose Poly also was undefeated, but had played more loop opponents than the Dienhartmen. This season both Ball State and Wabash hold the edge over St. Joe by playing more Indiana competition.

INDIANA COLLEGE CONFERENCE
	W	L	Pct.
Wabash	4	0	1.000
Ball State	4	0	1.000
St. Joseph's	1	0	1.000
Rose Poly	4	1	.800
Valparaiso	3	1	.750
DePauw	2	1	.666
Manchester	2	2	.500
Butler	1	1	.500

Six teams are under the .500 mark.

I-M touch football games over the weekend showed plenty of spirit and fight with the latter predominating especially in the Drexel-Noll battle.

We didn't see George Halas or Frank Leahy on the sidelines of the Seifert-Xavier game, but somebody must have taught that T-formation to the Community boys, for they really were on their toes.

Drexel had plenty of scouts on hand for the Seifert-Xavier engagement, and the reports we heard are that the plaque will be back in Drexel shortly.

With the basketballs again swishing through the hoops in the field-house, it really looks as if St. Joe is out for the Indiana Conference title. If you don't think the Pumas are going to have a great team this year, just ask Jiggs Huysman, veteran center. He'll also be willing to relate his predictions to you for a nominal fee.

On to Indianapolis and nothing but victory over the Butler Bulldogs.

Cage Lettermen In Stiff Competition For All Positions

Coach Deinhart has six returning lettermen on the list of candidates from which he will select a team for this year's nineteen-game basketball schedule. Also battling for positions are seven numeral winners of last year's freshman quintet, two transfer students, and sixteen freshmen.

The returning lettermen are Jiggs Huysman, Connie Vanderkolk, Bernie Hoffman, Norb Walsh, Curley Wisniewski, and Ed Ritter. Joe Mikan, Gil Hodge, Charley Hodge, Ed Cooper, John Dunn, Jerry Mullen, and Don Schrenk are last year's numeral winners seeking varsity berths.

Questionnaire On I-M Answered By Students

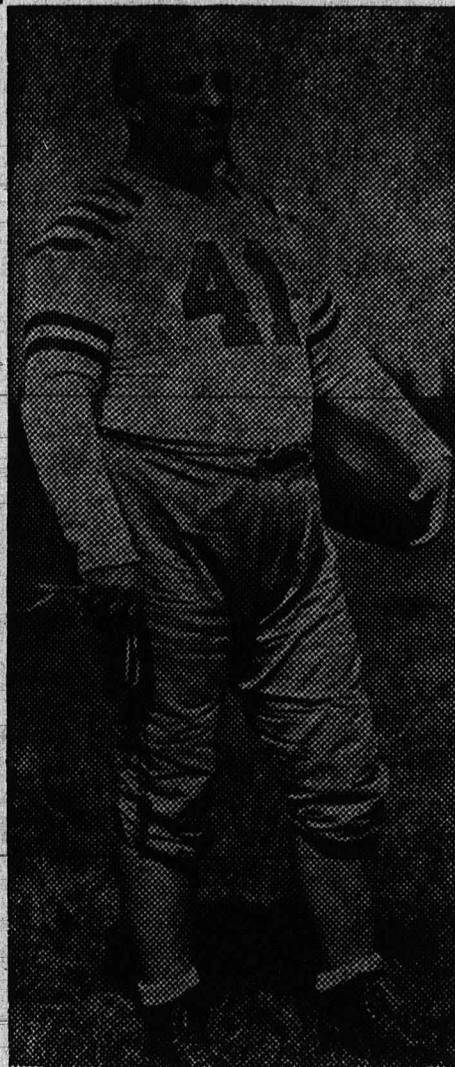

Results of the questionnaire submitted to the students last week were recently announced. Of the 330 who answered it, 158 desired basketball; twenty-five, boxing; forty-one, bowling; twenty-one, volleyball; twenty-eight, calisthenics. Thirty-two are playing varsity sports. The remaining are either seniors or some who are excused.

Boxing has been cited by the government as one of the best sports for physical training. St. Joe's boxers are tutored by Hod Parker, of Rensselaer. They work out every Monday through Friday from 3:30 to 5:30.

In his first year as mentor Coach Pop Hedden hopes to stop the Puma string at 19 games. Tom Sleet will lead the attack from the fullback position. This will be the fourth meeting of the two teams on the gridiron.

Slate Kept Clean By Win Over Green Knights of St. Norbert's

Continuing their winning ways, the St. Joe Pumas returned from West DePue, Wisconsin, with a 19-0 victory under their belts. The victims were the Green Knights of St. Norbert's. This was the fifth win of the season for the Pumas. They have played one tie.

Two of the touchdowns were scored by Captain Pete Varini, fullback. In the waning minutes of the first half, Pete intercepted a Green Knight aerial and dashed 47 yards for the first St. Joe score. In the third period the Puma fullback crashed over right tackle for 21 yards and the second score of the game.

March 59 Yards

In the final stanza the St. Joe aggregation marched 59 yards to a score. Quarterback Stan Lapsys lateraled to George Ellspermann from the 27-yard line for the tally. Wisniewski added the extra point by placement.

Ellspermann and Varini sparked the St. Joe offensive, while Charles Marhi paced the losers.

Oppose Butler In Conference Tilt At State Capital

It's back to Indiana Conference competition Saturday for St. Joe as the team travels to the state capital to meet the Butler Bulldogs. Nothing but victory will do for the Pumas, who are trying to retain their share of the loop title.

To date the St. Joe team has been victorious in its only conference game. That was the victory over Indiana State. Butler has lost one game to Wabash and trounced DePauw in its other league tilt.

Drills for the Pumas this week will consist mostly of sharpening their offensive and mapping a defense to stop the Bulldogs who have just started to roll after losing six ball games. The Dienhartmen should be in top shape for the combat.

Losing Streak Halted

Butler, after losing six games to Xavier, Indiana, Illinois, Ohio University, Wabash, and Western Michigan, finally put the pressure on DePauw and started rolling. The result was a 39-0 win. Last Saturday the Bulldogs again were victorious. They humbled Toledo 12-0.

Saturday will be the final game for the Indianapolis eleven. They would like nothing better than a victory over St. Joe. If you will remember, it was the Pumas who knocked the Butler team from the top rung of the Indiana Conference last season.

Hedden Replaces Hinkle

Coach Frank (Pop) Hedden who has taken the place of the famed Paul (Tony) Hinkle, now head football and basketball mentor at the Great Lakes Naval Academy, will probably use the following lineup.

At ends there will be Harold Miller, a junior letterman, and Knute Dobkins, the sophomore giant. The tackle positions will be filled by sophomores Dave LaVine and Bill Horvitch. In the guard slots will be Bob Hamilton and a freshman, Emil Neeme. Sophomore Joe Kodba will handle the pivot position.

Backfield Not Certain

The starting backfield is not a certainty, but Jim Gilson is the probable choice for the signal-calling post. Tom Sleet, a huge Negro, will undoubtedly be found at full. Norm Williams, Bill Howard, Steve DeWald, and Boris Dimancheff will all see action at the halfback positions.

Dimancheff, a star last season, has been hampered this season by an injured knee. He has returned to the team, but the amount of service he will see is not known.

Cannibalistic Mouse Eats Two-Foot Snake

Mouse eats snake. Mouse eats mouse. Mouse attempts to eat other snake. Mouse loses life as he attacks larger foe.

No, this isn't a misconception of the eye or mind or whatever type of mysticism it might be called, but an actual fact. The scene of action was the biology laboratory of St. Joseph's College.

Thinking that the two pet bull snakes, which are standard equipment of the laboratory, would like a nice mouse dinner, Father Baechle put a live deer mouse, which had been caught in a nearby field, into the snake pen. With no other thought in mind than that the snakes would enjoy their dinner, Father left the lab.

Mouse Eats Snake

Well, you can imagine his surprise when, upon looking into the cage the next morning, he found one live bull snake, the larger one, the remains of what was once a two-foot snake and the deer mouse quietly snoozing off his snake supper in a corner of the cage.

At the unexpected turn of events, Father didn't know what to do. Finally he hit upon the idea of putting a live house mouse into the cage also. This he did, then went about his work.

Mouse Eats Mouse

Imagine his surprise again when he returned to the cage only to find one live bull snake, the remains of a house mouse and one live deer mouse again in the corner, this time sleeping off his mouse dinner.

Hardly believing his eyes, Father Baechle again left the cage to await further developments.

When the cage was next viewed it at once became apparent that the mouse had once more become hungry and gone to work on the remaining snake. But this time he had not fared so well, for the tiny mouse was found to be quite dead in the middle of the tight coils of the bull snake. Apparently the snake had been slightly annoyed by the gnawing of the little deer mouse.

Repaint Road Signs

To insure safety for the students, the yellow lines on the highway crossing between Drexel Hall and the main campus received a new coat of paint. The highway commission was in charge of the painting which took place last Friday.

Drivers of automobiles will be able to notice the yellow lines and are expected to slow down when passing the campus.

Gas Rationing Cancels Commerce Club Dance

Because of poor transportation facilities the Commerce Club has called off its dance with St. Francis College at Joliet, Illinois.

Make Time Library Clock Gives Away Extra Seconds

Buck Loshe, Noll Hall, discovered an interesting thing in the library the other day. He was studying Math and happened to be in a numerical state of mind. So he started to count the seconds on the clock. To his amazement he counted not 60 but 81 seconds.

Beginning to doubt his ability to count, he watched the second hand tick around again—81 times per minute. Of course, these premium seconds are due to the way the pendulum is set. But Buck isn't convinced of this yet. He still goes to the library where he gets his extra 21 seconds.

Geology Lab Notes

Many improvements have been made in the geology department this year according to the Rev. Carl Nieset, C.P.P.S., geology instructor.

In addition to a new mineralogy equipment case that was acquired this summer, other improvements were undertaken on the laboratory tables. Gas and electrical fixtures, similar to those in the other laboratories, were installed on the tables in the geology laboratory.

Many new fossil specimens, minerals and rocks were also acquired this summer by Fr. Nieset on a trip through the southwestern states. Among the geological samples brought back by Fr. Nieset are new specimens of fossil material for the paleontology course, rocks and minerals from Texas and copper ore from Arizona.

Albertus Magnus Club Will Mail News Letter

At the regular meeting of the Albertus Magnus Club, held last Friday night, plans were formulated to make up a form letter which will be sent to all the alumni who were once members of the club.

The letter will contain news of all activities of the club and may, in time, develop into a bulletin which would be published quarterly. The first letter will contain, primarily, news of the success of the science exhibit which was staged last April, and club activities so far this year.

Field Trips Cancelled

It was also decided at the meeting to cancel all scheduled club trips from the campus because of the war conditions.

John Terveer was the guest speaker at last Friday's meeting. John, a sophomore from Decatur, Indiana, spoke on "Dehydrated Food" and the many advantages that could be gained through the use of food thus prepared. "One of the most striking advantages of dehydrated food," said John, "is the shipping space it saves. One ship load of dehydrated food is equal to fifteen ship loads of ordinary food. The saving can readily be seen when shipping food to our armies overseas."

The club encourages all students interested to attend these talks which follow each scheduled meeting. As yet no speaker has been selected for the next meeting to be held Friday, November 19.

Registrar's New Hours

These hours are in addition to the office's regular hours from 1:00 to 3:00 o'clock on Monday, Friday and Saturday. Students must have appointments to see the registrar at any other time.
